PENNSYLVANIANS CALL ON M'KINLEY

Silver Republicans in Utah Form a Party.

SENATOR MITCHELL'S STAND

MILWAUKEE, Wis., September 5.-Fiveminute speeches and thousands of handclasps, more or less enthusiasm, constituted the incidents attending the trip of W. J. Bryan from Chicago to this city this morning. There were short stops at Waukegan, Kenosha and Racine and the nominee spoke to crewds of hundreds at each place. The party left Chicago at 8:45 and arrived here at 11:45 a.m. On board were Mr. E. C. Wall, F. W. Von Cotchausen, Julius Schuendel and P. J. Somers, and at Kenosha a reception committee of twentyfive from this city, headed by W. H. Rogers, boarded the train.

At the depot at Chicago there were less than a hundred to see Mr. Bryan off, and a small-sized cheer went up as the train pulled out. The first stop was made at Waukegan, where about 700 people gathered about the car and demanded a speech from Mr. Bryan. He was introduced by the chairman of the democratic central committee as the next democratic President of the United States. Mr. Bryan said: "Ladies and Gentlemen: I haven't time to make a speech, but I am very glad to see you whether you are drawn here by what you whether you are drawn here by what opposing papers call lide curiosity or by interest in the cause being presented in this campaign. I am inclined to believe there is a great deal of idle interest among the people on both sides of this question. Some believe the success of the free silver cause would be very detrimental to the country.

"They, of course, are earnestly opposed "They, of course, are earnestly opposed to us. Others believe that there can be no general return of prosperity to the people of the United States until we stop the appreciation of money by giving the people more standard money. It is not fer one man to say how another shall think, or act, or vote, but I believe we have a right to urge upon you the importance of studying the question for ourselves and not allowing anybody to think for you." CANTON, Ohio, September 5.-The Beaver county, Pa., delegation reached the Mc-Kinley home, 2,500 strong, at 12:15 this afternoon. They came on special train over the Pennsylvania road. Senator Mitchell for several years has been an advocate of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, but he now announces that he stands with the republican party, and that he is of the opinion that bimetallism must be coupled with protection to bring about that degree of prosperity that rightfully belongs to the United States.

and was alleged to have been committed in the saloon while the constable was serving a writ of attachment for rent. Lawyer Glassle was on the premises when the constable called and he declared that the writ was defective.

For this reason, he said, he advised Mr. Hager not to allow the attachment of any goods. The constable did not make an attachment, and claims he was prevented from so doing by the saloon keeper's taking him by the coat and telling him to leave. Although he was a constable and claimed he had authority in the premises, he made no resistance in the matter and went away. He claimed that Mr. Glassie told Hager to kick him out. This Mr. Glassic denied. and he also den'ed that Mr. Hager used the force charged.

The constable presented the papers in the case, but Mr. Glassie said that they had case, but ar. Gisse said that they had been changed since he saw them at Mr. Enger's place, when the constable was there to make the levy. This was admitted by the constable, who said that the change had been made yesterday.

As at present understood, there is an intense opposition on the part of the lines south of Atlanta to having the Southern-Seaboard war spread beyond its present limits, and every effort will be made by those interested to keep it confined to the territory at present involved.

It is understood that another meeting of the executive board of the Southern States Freight Association will be held in New York early next week. The meeting, if held, will be of the most important character, and the result of the deliberations will, it is expected, have a large influence in determining whether there shall be a wide and disastrous war or peace restored. It is feared in some usually well-informed quarters that if a long war of rates ensued more than twenty railway lines of the south will be thrown into the hands of the

Mr. Baldwin's Change of Position. Much surprise was occasioned last evening in railroad circles here by the announcement in The Star that Second Vice signed to accept the presidency of the Long Island Railroad Company, to succeed the late Austin Corbin.

Mr. Baldwin is regarded by railway men as one of the most promising railroad men in the United States. Although he is but thirty-three years old, he possesses the confidence of the railway magnates and bankers of New York and other eastern cities to a remarkable degree. He has never had the advantage of family wealth, and his promotions, rapid as they have been, have been due entirely to merit. In leaving the Southern to accept the presidency of the Long Island he goes to the same road where Mr. Samuel Spencer, now the president of the Southern, first widely attracted attention to his great railway abilities.

The severance of the official relations of Mr. Baldwin is regretted by all the employes of the Southern who are acquainted with him, but the friends here of Mr. W. W. Finley, who has been chosen to succeed bim, are much pleased that the latter is to return to Washington.

THE CAMPAIGN IN OREGON.

Senator Mitchell is to Go on the Stump for McKinley. Special Correspondence of The Evening Star.

PORTLAND, Oregon, September 1. The republicans, the gold democrats and the populists of Oregon have during the past week each had an inning in the game of politics. Saturday night the gold democrats held their state convention in Portland, and Monday United States Senator John H. Mitchell created a stir in the republican camp by his return to Portland ready to doff his coat and take up the fight for McKinley; yesterday the democratic state central committee surrendered, boots and saddles, to the populists, the terms of capitulation being an unqualified indorsement of Bryan and Watson. The meeting of the gold democratic convention was an event in the history of politics in Oregon. The attendance was not so large in numbers, but it was an earnest, enthusiastic gathering, with one common purpose in view-registering a sol-emn protest against the action of the leaders of the democratic party at the Chicago national convention. There was no disturbing element pres ent, there were no vociferous "generals" or "colonels," and the noise and dispute characteristic of political assemblages were entirely absent. It was a quiet, orderly body of men, many of them prominent in the ranks of Oregon's democracy, while among them mingled many young men who are just shaping their political course. In fact, the convention was a representative gathering of men who fully realized the importance of the steps which were to be The feature of the convention was the resolutions presented for adoption. Upon the main issues of the campaign they are clear and sound. The firm and intelligent support given to the President in his main support given to the President in his main-tenance of the principles upon which stable government and civilized society are founded is a rebuke to the St. Louis and Chicago conventions alike. The utterances upon the tariff question, upon which homest, intelligent and loyal men do not think alike, are such as to repel no democrat who may agree with Bryan on this quetion alone. The proposal to submit the same series of resolutions to the Indianapolis convention was considered a good one. The convention met at 10 a.m. and closed its labors at 4 p.m., after selecting eight delegates to attend the Indianapolis convention, together with a like number of alternates, and the appointment of a state central committee composed of five mem-

The sentiment of the convention was plainly in favor of the nomination of a democratic ticket at indianapolis. The one prevailing thought was the deleat of Bryan, and it was thought that a third ticket would contribute more to this end than an indorsement of McKinley.

Senator Mitchell's return was anticipated, having been foretold in a telegram received from him a week ago. The Senator has found himself a much-sought man since his return. During the next few days he will devote his time to personal affairs, but when the campaign is formally opened he will go where duty calls him, spreading the gospel of republicanism and McKinley among the people of the state. Since the adjournment of Congress Sen-ater Mitchell has passed considerable time in the eastern states, and while on his travels was a careful student of the actual political situation. In an interview he said in substance;

"The outlook in the east is decidedly favorable to McKinley, and I am strongly inclined to the opinion that when the election is held Mr. Bryan will be beaten worse than was Horace Greeley in 1872. On the popular vote Candidate Bryan will carry more states than old Greeley, but when it comes to striking a balance on the popular vote the popocrat nominee will be over-whelmed. From what I can learn, the sentiment in the middle western states is rapidly changing. In Indiana, filinois and Alinnesota everything is in favor of the republican ticket. I do not consider any of these states the least doubtful. The chances are also favorable for the republicans to carry Kastnedy. cans to carry Kentucky.
"When I take the stump I will fully set forth my views why I think McKinley should be elected President of the United States. In this connection I may as well state now that there are several vital questions involved in the campaign aside from the financial question. There is the question of protection to American industries and American labor; the question of national supremacy, integrity of the organization and ultimate decision of the national difference of the national dif judiciary. In other words, the same questions are involved in the coming campaign relative to policies and principles over the vindication of which the war of the re-relative to policies and principles over the vindication of which the war of the rebellion was fought to a finish."

Tuesday was the day set for a meeting of the populist state central committee in Portland. The object of the meeting was to decide in what terms fusion could be accomplished with the democrats. Two weeks ago the democratic state central committee met, with the express intention of fusing on electors in its own way. The populist executive committee was not, however, ready to surrender, and an adjournment. ready to surrender, and an adjournment was taken until yesterday. During the interim the populist managers were delayed with letters, all declaring that the only terms of fusion must be the indorsement of Bryan and Watson. When the meeting convened yesterday, a general sentiment prevailed that the only course to pursue was to stand by Bryan and Watson, and if fusion could not be accomplished on those terms, then to go it alone with a straight-out populist electoral

The first proposition came from the democrats. It was that each party should withdraw two of its electors, and the re-President Baldwin of the Southern had re- maining four be indersed by both parties. This was replied to by the adoption of a strong Bryan and Watson resolution, pledging the support of every populist in the state to vote for the nominees of the St. Louis convention. Later, however, a communication was sent the democrats, stating that the populists would unite on one electoral ticket, provided Sewall's name did not appear thereon. To this the democratic campaign committee readily consented. An adjournment followed, and in the afternoon a basis of fusion was agreed upon. This was that the four electors on both tickets should resign, and in their places should be named two populists, one silver democrat and one free and unlimited sliver republican. Today the combination executive committee met and selected the four electors.

JAPANESE NAVIGATION. The Little Brown Boys Are Not Se

Smart as Credited With Being. From the Portland Oregonian. "I notice that the Japs are intending to build some forty-knot steamers," said Al Betts, the well-known pilot, the other day. "Those little brown boys are pretty hot stuff," he continued, "but they have considerable to learn yet about steam Lavigation, although they have the assurance of the very Old Nick himself. I notice! a circomstance showing the development of this trait in their character when I was piloting the Jim-Jam-Ju over there, while the late war was in progress. You see, steam ravigation was something new with them when the war tegan, and when they began buying steamships in Europe, they aiways had to have a Caucasian crew, or, at least, the officers had to be foreigners. The govern-ment always put on a lot of subs to learn the business as rapidly as they could, in order to dispense with the services of the white men as soon as possible.

"The white crew of one of their big steamers had some trouble one morning and quit work, and as there were no other available men handy, the Japs who had been working under them took charge. The steamer went all right as long as she was going ahead, but when the captain desired to stop her, he found that the engineer had no control over the machinery. There happered to be plenty of sea room, and the wheel was jammed hard down, and the vessel began going round and round in a circle. The Jim-Jam-Ju was lying off at a safe distance, so that we watched the performance with considerable interest. ter and faster the vessel swung round, each time reducing the size of the circle, and there is no teiling how the thing would have resulted had it not been for an unlooked-for accident. The steamer got to shortening up the circles so much that her bowsprit finally crashed into her own mizzen rigging, carrying away the spanker, which went through the dock into the engine room, breaking off the steam pipe, thus bringing the steamer to a sudden stop. We then went alongside and towed the disabled vessel into port, and ever since that time I have been careful about believing too much about the marine intelligence of the Japanese.'

Highest Prices of the Week for Stocks Recorded.

RAILWAY LIST WAS QUITE STRONG

Factors That Led to Selling to Realize Profits.

GENERAL MARKET REPORTS

Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.

NEW YORK, September 5.-In many instances the prices recorded in today's stock market represented the highest level for the week. The railway list was conspicuously strong, the granger groups being favored by buyers, Rock Island in particular. The specialties, under the leadership of Tennessee Coal and Iron and General Electric, were again active, on an ascending scale. The buying of these shares was reported to be for strong interests, fully advised as to future prospects and possi-

Sugar was less buoyant than the general market owing to realizing sales around 114, the stock being closed at last night's level only by the powerful efforts of the manipulating interest. Monday's holiday and the interest payments incident to operators in the now popular account naturally invited profit-taking in high-priced properties.

The talk of the selling was attributed to traders, however, and had no influence on the main situation. The optimistic conclu-sions reached immediately after the midweek political announcements continued to dominate prices up to the close of business today. The only argument favorable to a reaction is the extent of the recent rise and the continued narrowness of the market. To offset this is the prospect of continued gold Importations and more normal roney conditions.

This week's bank statement reflects a gain of $1.851,200 in the specie holdings of the associated banks, which is a partial reflection of the inward movement of coin.

A decrease of $3.674,600 in the legal tender holdings indicates a continued demand for money from out-of-town sources. The gold to arrive during the coming week is con-sequently likely to be converted into legal tenders at the subtreasury immediately upon its receipt. The government gold re-serve will profit by such an operation, and the banks can make good the recent drain on their legal tender supply.

A further contraction in loans, amounting to $2,720,100, is reported, as well as a decrease of $4,853,000 in deposits. An increase of $124,000 in circulation is the natural result of the scatcity of other forms of currency.

The real improvement in the monetary

The real improvement in the monetary situation should be more fully reflected in next week's statement. The necessity for an issue of clearing house certificates, it is hoped, has been permanently avoided by the prudent conduct of the stronger institutions, and the steadily increasing confidence in business circles. Railway carnings and industrial prosperity have not assumed prographics, incriping expensions. assumed proportions justifying extensive buying at this time.

The tendency is in the right direction and sentiment for the moment has risen su-perior to facts. A reaction would be neither newarranted nor wholly undestrable around the present level. It would simply add to the apparent naturalness of the upward inovement. The panie is out of the market and declines need no longer be regarded as the forerunner of financial
